

The field I am going into is education. My dream since I was in elementary school was to become a teacher. I have had my fair share of teachers who do not treat students equally. I almost did not graduate high school because of those teachers. Those teachers would treat my friends and sister better than myself. I was the student they would talk poorly of in front of other students and classes. If I could not complete a task like they wanted, instead of helping me, they would belittle me in front of the whole class. They would tell me that they did not want to teach me and that I was not graduate from high school. I do not want to see any students go through school the way I did. I did not have a family support system either. I had no one that cared if I went to school. I want to change that. I want to be the teacher students remember for years. I want to be there for the students, no matter the background they have. I think everyone can succeed and achieve their dreams. Sometimes, they only need someone in their corner who believes in them. I want to be that person in their corner. I know that educators do not get paid much, but the money is not a important factor to me. I am not going into this career field for pay. I am going into this career field to support the students. I want to stand up for the kids who has no one standing up for them. Going into college full-time, I was a single mother with a full-time job. I did not have any support until I met a math professor in my third year of college. He believed in me. He knew what I was capable of, and he believed in me when I did not believe in myself. I look up to him and want to be there for my future students like he was for me. I will make a difference for my students no matter what grade I teach. I want to make everyone enjoy going to school. I want to make everyone feel welcome. After I complete my bachelor's degree in education, I will get my Master's in Math and science. I want to be a STEM teacher. I want to be the teacher that willing spends my own money for my classroom. I do not have a problem with that. I want my students to enjoy themselves in my classroom. I want to be the teacher they write about when they become successful. I do not want my students to quit on anything in life. I want to have fun teaching and allow any student to feel loved and supported.
